FEATURE OF HILO MEETING WAS VISIT TO BREAKWATER

THE CONVENTION PARTY THAT VIEWED HILO BREAKWATER

[Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence]
HILO, Oct. 1.—A pleasant morning's outing during which D. E. Metzger gave a brief sketch of the work proposed on the Hilo breakwater and pointed out what the improvement would mean to the town, followed by the first of the meetings for which the delegates came and the second later again in the evening, marked the first day's doings in connection with the convention of civic bodies in this town, arrangements for which were planned and carried out by the Hilo board of trade last week.
The delegates, of whom there were thirty-six from Honolulu and four from Maui, were met on the wharf and taken to the Hilo hotel in automobiles. At 10 o'clock they again boarded the machines and were whirled up to Rainbow falls. From there they drove to the breakwater and boarded a scow on which seats had been fixed. This was taken in tow by a launch and the party towed to the end of the finished section of the breakwater.
During the trip out D. E. Metzger pointed out on a map just what was planned, and what had already been done in connection with the improvements to the harbor. During the course of his talk Metzger stated that both Honolulu and Hilo would undoubtedly grow during the next few years, but he did not think Honolulu's growth would be equal to that of Hilo.
According to the way he outlined the plans, there will be 75 acres of good, deep-water harbor when the breakwater is finally finished. There will be an entrance a mile wide and with all the reefs and rocks dredged out.
The party returned to the hotel and met again in the Masonic hall, when the first section of the convention was officially declared open by President Elliot of the Hilo board of trade, with a few appropriate words.

HILO MEETING IS LAUDED BY C. R. FRAZIER

Says Civic Convention Was a Great Success—Praises Spirit

Charles R. Frazier, of the Pioneer Advertising Company, who returned yesterday morning from Hawaii, where he went as a delegate to the Hilo Civic convention, says that the convention was a great success, and while it was not as well represented by delegates from Honolulu as should have been the case, it made a good start for future conventions.
"The convention," said Mr. Frazier, "will probably be as valuable to the Honolulu men who went there, and perhaps much more so, than to the Hilo people, for what impressed the Honolulu men most was the extensive harbor facilities now under construction, the splendid country opened up by the Hamakua extension of the Hilo railroad, the wonderfully scenic country back of Hilo, and the enterprise of the Hilo business man. In Hilo, Honolulu has a rival which she must take into consideration."
"It would be hard for Honolulu to duplicate the splendid hospitality which Hilo showed its guests during the convention. The delegates from Honolulu, Maui and from other points on Hawaii were all warmly welcomed and entertained by the hotel and transportation companies. A free trip was provided from Hilo to the end of the Hamakua extension of the Hilo Railroad, which stopped at various points of interest along the way, especially on some of the larger bridges, giving the passengers a chance to appreciate the engineering work that had been done on it. One of the most interested passengers was Gerritt P. Wilder, whose father's great ambition was to have built this railroad, but he did not live to carry out his project.
"The business of the convention ended with a splendid banquet at the Hilo Hotel, where there was much expression of good fellowship, several speeches being made. The ladies of the party were entertained by Mrs. Elliott, Dr. Elliott's wife, and the ladies of Hilo at a card party at the home of Mrs. Elliott.
"Hilo is bound to grow, but we don't want her to get ahead of Honolulu."
